1. A long shared history, of which the group is conscious as distinguishing it from other groups, and the memory of which it keeps alive;
2. A cultural tradition of its own, including family and social customs and manners, often but not necessarily associated with religious observance. In addition, there are other relevant characteristics, one or more of which will commonly be found and will help to distinguish the group from the secondary community;
3. Either a common geographical origin or descent from a small number of common ancestors;
4. A common language, not necessarily peculiar to the group;
5. A common literature peculiar to the group;
